Republicane Somewhat Encouraged by Ex-

New York, Aug. 12.—The political develop ments of the last forty-eight hours have given the republicans some encouragement. There are indications that the "getting together" Mas been used for ever FIFTY YEARS by MILLIONS of MOTHERS for their CHILDREN WHILE TEETH-ING with PERFECT SUCCESS. It SOOTHES the CHILD, SOFTENS the GUMS, ALLAYS all PAIN, OURES WIND COLIC and is the best remedy for DIARRHCEA. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Just what is going on between Platt and the other leaders ing on between Platt and the other leaders the public are not permitted to know, but that he is having quiet consultations with Whitelaw Reid, Clarkson, McComas and others at the headquarters of the national organization cannot be doubted. His assertion that he did not want to be placated may have meant all that it said, but whether that is the fact or not, there is reason to believe that he is getting into line. It is just possible that Mr. Platt may have some personal plans with reference to either the senatorship or some important position under the next administration, should it be republican. BILIOUSNESS, CONSTIPATION, TORPID LIVER, Bac, cured. Nerve and Liver Fills, 50 doese 25c. Semples free. SCHELLER & STEVENS, 92h st. and Ps. sve.

The recent decision by the courts in this state against the arrangement of the legislative districts has given the republicans a good deal of hope in regard to the senatorship. They now have quite strong hopes that they will be able to carry enough districts to gain control of the legislature and elect a republican successor to Senator Hiscock. Mr. Platt has not been much enamored of Senator Hiscock's methods of late, and he evidently prefers to get himself inside of the party lines, so as to be able to have a hand in the farming out of the senatorship when that time comes, if it should come. The recent decision by the courts in this NOTHING AFFORDS THE RESPECTABLE

DISSATISFIED DEMOCRATS. There is a good deal of quiet dissatisfaction here with the selection of the managers of the democratic campaign. With Mr. Harrity, a Cleveland man, as chairman of the national committee, Mr. Dickinson as chairman of the executive committee and Mr. Whitney, a Cleveland man, as the mainspring of the machinery which is to run the campaign, there is a growing feeling among the anti-Cleveland men that they are not to be "in it" in case of AND ACCEPTS REPAYMENT FROM THE SMALL BAVINGS OF HER

His duties lie in that direction and he is brought constantly in contact with prominent people on both sides of the political fence.

"I believe," said he, "if the election were to take place today Harrison would carry the state by a large majority."

"How do you make that out, Mr. Durham?"

"Simply because many of the democrate of the state, particularly those of the city, have no love for Mr. Cleveland. They have no use for any man who should set himself up as away beyond the party in point of political virtues, and while they are not talking much about it since Cleveland is now the nominee of the party, they will not distress themselves about putting their will not distress themselves about putting their shoulders to the wheel to elect him." "But is not the republican situation about as

"But is not the republican situation about as bad?"

"I think not. Mr. Platt, of course, has been holding back somewhat, but there is reason to believe that he is getting into line with the people who are managing the campaign and I think that the republicans will soon get together for hard work. They seem to be managing their campaign well. Of course nobody can tell what a few weeks may bring forth, but I think if the election were to occur now Harrison would my opinion would not be worth much, though my impression is that Mr. Harrison is quite as likely to carry the state this time as four years ago, when he did carry it."

Mr. Durham's views on this subject are especially interesting, because, to begin with, he is a democrat; and, in the second place, he is brought closely into contact with the politicians of both sides and is in position to form a pretty accurate judgment of the situation.

Durham's Washington friends will be glad to know that he is doing well in New York. He has been in the newspaper work here for the past three years and seems to have struck his gait when he dropped into New York journalism.

Another former Washington newspaper man who is on daty about the hotels and in political circles here is Edson Brace, who was engaged in the newspaper work for several years there and afterward held a position as chief clerk of one of the bureaus in the Navy Department.

WHAT "CHARLET" COON TRINES OF IT.

Washington people continue to appear at Washington people continue to appear at every turn. I met ex-Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Chas. E. Coon on Broadway and asked him to tell the people of Washington what he thought of the political situation. "I think the republicans are in good shape,"

"What about the kickers?" was asked.
"Oh, that will soon disappear," he said. "I have reason to believe that Senator Platt, who was the most prominent among those who were dissatisfied, is going to pull off his coat in the interest of his party. Certainly he will not stand in the way of party success, and will, I am assured, give his assistance and advice in carrying the state, which I believe we shall do."
Mr. Linden Kent of Washington is spending some time here. I saw him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, but he was not inclined to talk for publication. Mr. Kent is not much of a politician, but a close observer, and he makes no secret of his belief that the selection of Mr. Dickinson is not the most satisfactory one that might have been made for the people of New York or of the south. Mr. Dickinson's course at Chicago was not such as to make the average New Yorker or southerner fail dead in love with him. His entry at the head of the Michigan delegation and the scene which followed, especially when a Michigan standard bearer stempted to place a Cleveland banner among the New York delegation did not have a tendency to enthuse the anti-Cleveland men of New York and other parts of the country in favor of Mr. Dickinson. "What about the kickers?" was asked.

favor of Mr. Dickinson.

There is a good deal of important consultation going on here now about the plans of the campaign. Each party is watching the other to see what its general plans are going to be and how wide a field is to be covered in the long fight which is ahead. And all indications point to a harder fight, covering a greater area of territory than on any preceding occasion.

BEPURITGAN HOPES IN THE SOUTH.

It is now pretty clearly understood that the republicans will make a fight in several of the southern states. Whether they will make it by a direct process or by way of the Farmers' Alliance is not certain. In the states where the bitterness has become so intense between the alliance and democracy it is probable that the republicans will take advantage of that condition and nuts republican electoral ticket into arrived at by which the republicans will cast their votes for alliance candidates in certain of the southern states with the purpose of taking away some democratic strength and the hope of getting alliance votes for republican candidates in other states. It is not probable, however, that this will prevail to any considerable extent, though the plan may be followed in one or two of the southern states.

Really the republicans have little to gain by this process, for, unless they have a majority of the electoral votes, they would have little advantage in reducing the democratic vote, since the absence of a clear majority by either party would simply throw the election into the House and there elect a democratic candidate. It is quite probable, however, that the republicans may take advantage in certain southern states of the wide division of the alliance and democrats and make a fight to elect republican electors.

It is understood that President Harrison It is understood that President Harrison still clings to the belief that Tennessee might be carried for the republicans and that Secretary Elkins is not without hope of a similar result in West Virginia and possibly North Carolina. Their theory is that with the alliance in the field to help in the final count of the votes they would be more likely to prevent being counted out than if there were but two electoral tickets in the field. It is understood, too, that the republicans intend to make a fight for New Jersey and Connecticut. DEMOCRATIC RAIDS IN THE WEST.

On the other hand, the democrate are prepar ing to make raids on a number of states which have been for years in the republican which have been for years in the republican column. They are quite hopeful of carrying Illinois and are not without a reasonable degree of confidence of success in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Montana. It is also understood that they intend to make a hard fight for New Hampshire. In Wisconsin and Minnesota they will also make tremendous efforts, particularly in the first-named state.

WHERE WILL BE THE HARDEST PIGHTING. Of course the hardest fighting will be done in New York and Indiana, yet there will be a score of other states in which the fight will be pushed more vigorously than in any previous campaign. Advices from Louisians give the republicans strong hope of being able to carry that state. These advices indicate that from 50,000 to 75,000 votes, which were formerly cast r democratic electors, will this time be given the alliance or third party ticket.

to the alliance or third party ticket.

On the whole this new development in the way of fighting in new ground promises more to the democrats than to the republicans. There is a larger number of formerly republican states which are now in the doubtful column than there are of the formerly democratic states now classed as doubtful. The difference states now classed as doubtful. The difference between the republican and democratic situation is that the republicans have got to fight to retain their hold upon nearly a dozen states while the democrats know that even if they are defeated by the Alliance in certain southern states they are sure to win if that merely results in throwing the election into the House. Hence they are not under such stress of spreading out their forces in self protection as are republicans, and they can go into the fight in republican states the more easily.

cans, and they can go into the fight in republican states the more easily.

Of course the great battle ground will be right here in New York state. And up to this time the democrats are showing more cordial cooperation so far as relates to the leaders. Say what you may about the so-called disaffection among the democrats the leaders are not indicating any great amount of antagonism. Even those who were most active in opposing Cleveland are taking off their coats and giving a good indication at least of cordial co-operation.

This much cannot be said for some of the republican leaders. No matter what assertions may be made about prospective co-operation by Senator Platt he has yet done nothing so far as can be learned to warrant the belief that he is in the work. On the other hand the rank and file, the people who do the voting, seem to is in the work. On the other hand the rank and file, the people who do the voting, seem to be more active and earnest on the republicans side than on the democratic. There is a marked difference between the movements of the masses of the two great parties in this particular.

Every night there are a large number of meetings of republican clubs, republican leagues, republican ward organizations and that sort of thing, while up to this time the democratic clubs, while the columns of the newspapers bristle with reports of meetings of local organizations in and out of New York. This would seem to indicate that among the masses the republicans have a decided advantage in the matter of enthusiasm, while on the other hand the democratic leaders are showing more of a disposition to get together than is the case with the republicans.

AN ACTIVE DAY FOR CAMPAIGN MANAGERS.

The Boston locksmith had been at work at it about eight hours. The contents of it will not be given for publication. They were bundled and tied with a strong cord and after Attorney Jennings and Officer Harrington had affixed their signatures on the outside the bundle was taken to the Safe Deposit and Trust Company and deposited.

The text of the complaint in the cases is as follows: Rufus H. Hilliard, city marshal of Fall River, in said county, in behalf of said commonwealth, on oath complains that Lizzie A. Borden of Fall River aforesaid, in the county afortsaid, on the 4th day of August, will-yellow the republicans.

and consultations are in progress on the ques-tion, what shall be done in the way of attempt-ing to carry certain western states which Dickinson, Cable and others from the west ing to carry certain western states which Dickinson, Cable and others from the west consider doubtful?

Both Dickinson and Cable urge the importance of activity in those states as important to take republican attention in that direction and prevent concentration on two or three states. Besides, they believe the chances of carrying Illinois and Wisconsin good.

Ex-Chairman Campbell does not agree with this. He says Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana will be assuredly in the republican column.

At republican headquarters there was a consultation held between Whitelaw Reid, Chairman Carter, Hahn of Ohio and others. The committee will accede to some of the plans of the southern republicans, and make an attempt to secure votes of certain southern states.

James Francis Burke of Pennsylvania leaves here today in the interests of the campaign. He is president of the Republican College Leagus, and will visit Buffalo and Detroit.

Cleveland's letter to the niece of H. Clay King of Memphis is the subject of no end of talk today.

Cleveland's letter to the niece of H. Clay King of Memphis is the subject of no end of talk today. There has been fear on the part of the democrats that in his rage for letter writing the troubles have begun. An effort will be made to check him off if he gets started again.

A meeting is going on at republican head-quarters to consider the establishment of a branch at Chicago, and the appointment of W. J. Campbell as chairman.

Gen. Tracey arrived here this morning to take charge of the representatives of the press calling at democratic headquarters and to give out information.

Neill, the London Poisoner, Much Interested in the Testimony.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The hearing in the case of Thomas Neill, indicted for the willful murder of Matilda Clover, was recumed before Sir John Bridge in the Bow street police court today.

Constable Conley testified that he saw a man closely resembling the prisoner leaving the house No. 118 Stamford street, where resided Alice Marsh and Emma Schriver, who met their deaths in a manner similar to that of the Clover girl. This was shortly before the Marsh and Schriver girls were found in a group on the floor in the house and were taken to St. Thomas Hospital.

After death among her effects were found two letters criminating you, which, if they ever become public property, will surely convict you of the crime. I inclose you a copy of one of the letters which the girl received on the morning of the 13th of October (the day on which she died). Just read it and then judge for yourself what hope you have of escape if the law officers ever get hold of these letters. Think of the shame and diagrace it will bring on your family if you are arrested and put in prison for this crime. My object in writing to you is to ask if you will retain me at once as your counsellor and legal advisor. If you employ me at once to act for you in this matter I will save you from all exposure and shame in the matter. But if you wait till arrested before retaining me, then I cannot act for you, as no lawyer can save you after the authorities get hold of these two letters. If you wish to retain me just write a few lines on paper saying: 'Mr. Fred Smith wishes to see life. Bains, the barrister, at once.' Paste this in one of your shop windows at 186 Strand naxt Tasaday morning and when I see it I will come in ahd have a private interview with you. NEGRO CRIMINALS.

More Difficulty in Arresting Them Than THEY WILL RESIST ARREST -- AN OLD-TIME PO-

"Few people know anything of the difference there is between arresting a white man or a colored man," said a veteran police officer to a Stan reporter this morning. They had been chatting over the effort which some of the colored residents have been making to bring about the removal of Col. W. G. Moore, superintendent of police.

"To have a white man resist arrest is a very rare occurrence," continued the old guardian of the peace, "but it is common with the colored folks, whether they be men, women or children. When you hear a complaint as to alleged brundlity of an editor toward if things are as he states, but he may have is the colored to be the colored and the colored toward and the colored folks, whether they be men, women or thin Smelser, he says, will have reduces if things are as he states, but he may have is

than twenty-five years, mostly in this city, and I never had but two fights with white prisoners.

One of them was too drunk to know what he was doing and when he sobered up made a very handsome apology. There are a great many nice colored people in this city and I am surprised to know that two or three of them are doing their best to encourage their degraded brethren and sisters to resist arrest by force; it may not occur to some of these so-called leaders that that is what they are doing when they endeavor to oust Col. Moore."

Officer Matthew Mulloy arrested a colored

Officer Matthew Mulloy arrested a colored man who had stolen several geese. The thief, who was armed with a hatchet, cut one of Mulloy's ears almost off, and would have brained his captor if he could possibly have managed it. Officer R. O. Melton is on detail duty today because a colored prisoner struck him with a heavy piece of pine joist. One eye is practically sightless as a result of the criminal's violence.

STRUCK WITH A BRICK. Detective Slater was not even struggling with a prisoner when he received the worst injury ever inflicted on him. He was standing at a patrol box, waiting for the wagon to take a man off his hands, when a colored boy stole the taken, as the Indians were still in the vicinity of the murders according to reprosts. broken. For many weeks the detective was near death's door and it was many weeks more before he could do even half duty.

Officer Frederick Voelbel is a paralytic today

Officer Frederick Voelbel is a paralytic today in consequence of a ferocious assault made upon him by the "Johnson gang." Voelbel had arrested Levi Johnson and was moving toward the station house with him when a mob of colored toughs set upon him took his pistel and stick away and would almost surely have killed him had not two or 'hree officers arrived in the nick of time.

Officer Paul Kerston was serving a warrant on George Baker, a notorious negro character, when Baker kicked him in the groin and inflicted permanent and painful injury.

TRIED TO KILL OFFICER HATTON. While Officer J. T. Hatton was making an arrest in Southwest Washington he was fired upon by a colored man. Letting go his prisoner Hatton chased the would-be murderer into a stable loft, and there a crowd of negroes did their utmost to kill the officer. They chewed up one of his hands most horribly and disabled him for some time, but he ultimately caught his assailants.

Officer William Kemp, while standing at a patrol box, was struck on the head with a brick and badly cut. While prostrate in fired at the ficeing assailant and broke a leg with a builet.

Officer S. L. Redgrave was in a loft after a fugitive negro, when the fugitive struck him with a pitchfork handle, knocked him out of the loft to the ground and almost killed him. This same Officer Redgrave while standing near a patrol box with Officer Thomas Hanley was fired upon by a negro. Which of the two was aimed at is not clear, but fortunately neither of them was hit.

Officers C. J. Wagner, Edward Murphy and George W. Mason all know what it means to be a physical minority. Each of these and other officers, whose names are not remembered now, have been held down while their pistols and batons have been taken from them by colored assailants.

Officer G. W. Horton is the last officer who found it necessary to shoot in self-defense. He had arrested a desperate negro named Hall and was taking him in, when Hall turned suddenly and knocked him down. He was about to do worse, when the officer shot at him and killed him. Fowler pursued him, and when Langston approached threateningly fired a shot over his head. In the struggle which followed Langston secured possession of the pistol and shot Powler so that he died within an hour or so. When captured by Officer-Boiand Langston regretted that he was not aware that the pistol contained one more cartridge. He declared he would have killed Boiand with it had he known there was another shot in the chamber.
